"FIVE-STAR HOTEL AWARD"

2018 - 2013

With a landmark setting in a quintessentially American city, the story of Trump International Hotel & Tower Chicago began with one family's bold vision and desire to create something very special that would make a lasting impression on Chicago for many years to come.

It all started with the location. By acquiring the former site of the Chicago Sun-Times, adjacent to the landmark Wrigley Building and situated on the Chicago River at North Wabash Avenue, the tower was guaranteed breathtaking views of the city, its landmarks, Lake Michigan, and the Chicago River — a combination of which no one could compete. The next step would be choosing a talented architect who could create a design worthy of this legendary city and meet Trump's exacting standards.

Trump selected the renowned design firm Skidmore, Owings & Merrill, the same minds behind some of the world's most recognizable buildings, including One World Trade Center and many others. Over 50 models were presented before a final design was selected. Further revisions were made after consulting with various local community groups, the Department of Planning and the brightest minds in the architectural scene in Chicago. Construction officially began on March 17, 2005.

A night-time photograph of the Trump International Hotel and Tower in Chicago. The building is a curved skyscraper with a glass facade, illuminated from within, with the word "TRUMP" in large, white, serif letters across its upper section. The building is situated on a raised platform above a body of water, with a series of columns supporting the structure. The water reflects the lights from the building and the surrounding city. Other skyscrapers are visible in the background, including the Willis Tower to the left. The sky is a deep blue, and the overall scene is lit with warm, golden light from the building's interior and exterior lighting.

92 stories & 1,389 feet of architectural perfection

Trump International Hotel and Tower Chicago is characterized by its 11,000 glass panels, all designed to withstand hurricane level, 200 MPH winds — an important element in “The Windy City”

Trump International Hotel & Tower Chicago is the tallest reinforced concrete building in the world and the seventh tallest building in the United States. The building is comprised of 2.6 million gross square feet, 486 residential condominiums, and 339 hotel condominiums. The building boasts the fastest elevators in North America, with travel from ground to top in an impressive 45 seconds. The ride is so smooth that passengers hardly feel the motion — an ear pop or two is all that signals the incredible speed and height they are traveling.

One of the most impressive architectural details is a glass wall surrounding the entire lower ground and mezzanine level. It is suspended from above and each piece is unique, gradually indenting into a wave pattern. Glass and windows play an important role in Trump Chicago, and the building is characterized by its 11,000 glass panels, all designed to withstand hurricane level, 200 MPH winds — an important element in “The Windy City.” The top floor of the residences is a sprawling 14,500 square feet, occupying the entire 89th floor, with unbelievable 20-foot floor-to-ceiling windows. Windows that high are nearly unheard of at the top of a building as tall as Trump Chicago.

The building’s three tiers add a sculptural element to the city’s skyline while simultaneously modulating the winds for which Chicago is so well known. Deeply intentional, the tiers are coordinated to match the heights of the tower’s neighboring properties, the Wrigley Building, the River Plaza, and Marina City Towers, adding to the balance of the landscape and providing optical continuity. The architectural boat tours of the city, which dock at the Trump Plaza, show off the tower at its most impressive, soaring over the Chicago River and enhancing the city’s dramatic visual appeal.

ARCHITECTURE

In June 2010, the Spire at Trump International Hotel & Tower illuminated the Chicago skyline for the first time. The steel spire itself is 227 feet tall and soars 1,389 feet into the sky. While it is an architectural feature, there is a practical, fiber glass element as well, allowing the spire to be used for broadcasting purposes. Solid white lights emanate from the spire nightly, but, similar to the Empire State Building in New York City, the lighting changes to pay tribute to holidays, Chicago-centric celebrations, and momentous occasions. Using LED high performance architectural floodlights, its radiance extends more than 800 feet in every direction and can produce any color on the spectrum. The light show effects have been warmly received by visitors and residents alike and it has become a Chicago landmark that we are proud to have provided for this amazing city. It is struck by lightning approximately 150 times a year, and on a stormy night, you might be able to catch the spectacle for yourself. The spire is also home to Norman, a peregrine falcon that has been known to sit atop Trump Chicago and dive down from the roof, hitting speeds of 200 MPH.
